1 WHEREAS, Wilmington is a vibrant and diverse city of proud residents, strong neighborhoods, and a thriving arts

4 business community is the envy of cities many times its size; and

5 WHEREAS, in many respects, Delaware's largest city is showing encouraging signs of growth—more people are 6 working in Wilmington than before the recession, four new middle and high schools are opening in the city this year, and 7 more than 500 residential units will be constructed in Wilmington over the next two years; and

8 WHEREAS, despite these encouraging signs, violent crime remains a pervasive problem that has the potential to 9 destroy communities, inhibit economic growth, and stifle efforts to help Wilmington reach its potential as a world-class 10 city; and

11 WHEREAS, according to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Wilmington ranks third in violence among 450 12 cities of its size, and sixth among all cities having a population of more than 50,000; and

13 WHEREAS, over the past decade, the City of Wilmington has averaged 118 shooting victims per year, reaching a 14 record-high of 154 shooting victims in 2013; and

15 WHEREAS, in 2014 alone, there were 127 shooting victims and 23 shooting deaths in the City of Wilmington; 16 and

17 WHEREAS, the General Assembly strongly believes that a healthy, vibrant Wilmington is in the best interests of 18 every Delawarean, and the well-being of our state is tied directly to the fate of our largest city; and

19 WHEREAS, through initiatives like the U.S. Department of Justice's Violence Reduction Network (VRN), the 20 federal High Intensity Drug Trafficking Areas (HIDTA) program, and other initiatives, the City has taken the lead in a 21 variety of citywide and multijurisdictional efforts to help stem the tide of violence in Wilmington; and

22 WHEREAS, notwithstanding the good-faith efforts of a variety of partners within and outside the city, Wilmington 23 would benefit from a comprehensive strategy with respect to violent crime, and neither the city nor the state can afford to 24 delay these efforts.

25 NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the House of Representatives of the 148th General Assembly of the
